Professor Peter Galvin
Curtin University Graduate School of Business

Peter is Professor of Strategic Management at Curtin University. Until 2013, he was Professor and Subject Group Leader for Strategic Management and International Business with Newcastle Business School, Northumbria University. Peter has also been employed as the MBA Director at Curtin University and has held positions at California Polytechnic State University (part of the California State University system) and Queensland University of Technology. He has held visiting appointments at the State University of New York, Stony Brook and ESC Toulouse in France. Before completing his PhD, Peter worked in management consulting within Australia.

With a long history of teaching MBA students and executive groups, Peter has won faculty, university and national awards for his teaching including a National Citation for 'Outstanding Contribution to Student Learning' from the Australian University Learning and Teaching Council. His teaching has led him to take a range of classes in countries such as France, Germany, Hong Kong, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia and South Africa. Peter has a strong interest in experiential teaching, from case method teaching to use of alternative media such as movies and has written both papers and book chapters that cover these issues. He is also an active supervisor of doctoral students having successfully graduated 18 such students as principal supervisor.

Peter's research covers the dynamics of firms' competitive actions within industries, firm boundaries and firm performance. This research has been applied in the construction, mobile telecommunications, motor-vehicle and wine industries. He is the current Editor-in-Chief for the Journal of Management & Organization, having previously served as an Associate Editor.
