

ANZAM Doctoral Workshop

Virtual Format, Tuesday 30th November 2021

2021 WIP RESEARCH NOTE GUIDELINES

If you wish to get your Work In Progress WIP research paper to be reviewed by experts through the ANZAM Doctoral Workshop, kindly adhere to the following guidelines or your submission might get rejected.

- Submit your note in a pdf file format.
- Follow APA 7th edition referencing style.
- Stick to 3-5 pages in length excluding references.
- Submit before Monday 4th October 2021 11:59 pm AWST.

Your Research Note will be discussed by an expert and some other students who might be interested to join the virtual room or allocated to the same expert for their review and therefore, you'll be allocated to a virtual group headed by an expert reviewer and your research note will be shared with the other students of that group for the wider benefit of the group members. Final details will be decided close to the event's day.

Your Research Note should explain your research in a clear and succinct manner. The following guidelines may help you to structure your Research Note. In subsequent pages, you'll also find a pre-formatted template which you should use for your submission. Please retain the formatting and stay within page limits.

Title	Include the working title of your thesis / dissertation / research
Keywords	Include at least four (4) keywords to describe your research. This will assist us in matching you with a relevant session / expert reviewer. Ensure at least one keyword is your research method.
Introduction	Outline the phenomenon that you are investigating and state why it is important; capture the reader's interest.
Research Question(s)	Clearly state your research question(s)
Theory Development	Briefly review the 2-3 main constructs underpinning your research and explain how your new theory or approach fits into the current literature
Method	Summarise how you intend to explore or are exploring this phenomenon.
Results/ Discussion	Report your (initial) findings here if you have already completed some data collection and analysis. Omit this section if not yet ready.

Title

Subtitle

Author(s) Name

Institution Name

City / State, Country

Keywords: [AT LEAST 4, INCLUDING METHOD]

Date: DD-MON-YYYY

Introduction

Outline the phenomenon that you are investigating and state why it is important; capture the reader's interest. (200-300 words).

Research Question(s)

Clearly state your research question(s).

Theory Development

Briefly review the 2-3 main constructs underpinning your research and then explain how your new theory or approach fits into the current literature. (750-1000 words).

Subheading 1

Text

Subheading 2

Text

Method

Summarise how you intend to explore or are exploring this phenomenon; depending on your progress, this may have more or less detail of what you will do or have done.

Results / Discussion

You can report your findings here if you have already completed some data collection and analysis. Omit this section if not yet ready.

References

Follow APA 7th Edition referencing guidelines (including in-text). The following three references are examples of APA 7th referencing.

Morris, T. (2017). PhD students: Side jobs are no solution. Nature (London), 550(7676), 333–

333. <https://doi.org/10.1038/550333e>.

Nyika, A. (2018). Postgraduate Handbook : A Comprehensive Guide for PhD and Master's Students and Their Supervisors. Caister Academic Press.

Ruming, K., & Dowling, R. (2017). PhD students' housing experiences in suburban Sydney, Australia. Journal of Housing and the Built Environment, 32(4), 805–825.

<https://doi.org/10.1007/s10901-017-9548-3>.