

Call for Papers: 1st Annual National HDR & ECR Symposium on Economic Development and Self-Determination for Indigenous Australia

This event is jointly organized by the Griffith Business School, the Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research (ANU), and the Asia College of Business & Law (CDU).

The purpose of this symposium is to gather HDRs and ECRs across Australia working on Indigenous issues from a broad field of disciplines to present their work, receive graduate training in research methodology and hear from keynote speakers (TBC) discussing key policy issues facing Indigenous Australians.

Relevant field include (but are not limited to): Indigenous Studies, Economics, Public Policy, Indigenous Business, Education and Health. The event for will also be used to highlight Career pathways in Research.

- Venue: Griffith University, Southbank Campus Brisbane
- Date: 27 & 28 October 2022
- Cost: Registrations is free and open to all HDRs and ECRs with research or teaching interests in First Nation areas. Financial support for travel and accommodation is available to Indigenous HDR and ECRs.
- Deadline: Those interested in presenting a paper or poster are encouraged to register and submit a short abstract of their work by COB Friday 16 September 2022 (up to 500 words). Authors will be notified of their acceptance by 23 September 2022. Early stage HDRs who may not have a presentation ready are also encouraged to attend. Attendees will need to register by 3 October 2022

General enquiries about the symposium (including abstract submissions and registration) should be directed to: Associate Professor Kerry Bodle GBS Academic Director (Indigenous) at k.bodle@griffith.edu.au