

About The Christchurch Foundation

The Christchurch Foundation was established in 2017 as a registered charity in Aotearoa, New Zealand. It also has a sister city charity in the United Kingdom. Over time, the Christchurch Foundation (henceforth referred to as The Foundation) intends to grow the global network of charities focused on making greater Christchurch better.

The Foundation's role is to make greater Christchurch better by growing philanthropy. They help generous people and companies achieve their dreams for our city by working on their (the donor's) behalf. Thinking local and striving to meet the needs of their hometown is now very important to many who are considering making a gift. The Foundation ensures that the donors' impact can be seen and felt among the neighbours, communities and suburbs of greater Christchurch.

Bio of Amy Carter

A passionate Cantabrian, Amy was thrilled to return to the not-for-profit sector in a full-time capacity when she joined The Christchurch Foundation as the founding Chief Executive. Amy's early career was in the not-for-profit sector, where she worked organisations including St John, Surf Life Saving New Zealand, Swimming New Zealand and the University of Canterbury Students Association. More recently, she was a consultant specialising in communications and stakeholder engagement, as well as holding several directorships in both not-for-profit and commercial entities. She is a part-owner of three Christchurch-based SME's, and a longstanding trustee of the Banks Peninsula Conservation Trust.

Additional information to review

- Website: <https://christchurchfoundation.org.nz/>
- Projects: <https://christchurchfoundation.org.nz/giving/projects/>
- News: <https://christchurchfoundation.org.nz/news/>
- Sister city registered charity: <https://register-of-charities.charitycommission.gov.uk/charity-search/-/charity-details/5172644/charity-overview>